F2F Helps 1,000 Texans

As of March 4, Friend to Friend Network has helped 1,000 families throughout Texas. Russ Lowe, director-regional operations, has served as a Friend to Friend ambassador in the state since the beginning of the Friend to Friend Network in 2004.

“There are a lot of charitable organizations out there — United Way, your church — but this is one for which every penny goes to help Union Pacific families,” he said. “I have seen how it helps. It is 100 percent for UP employees and retirees.”

Lowe himself has helped close to 200 families reap the benefits of Friend to Friend. These are a few of their stories.

Brian Reddick, a Fort Worth Diesel Shop locomotive foreman, joined the railroad more than 20 years ago, working first as a fireman & oiler before becoming a machinist apprentice. He has worked as locomotive foreman since 1997.

In 2011, Reddick’s family was met with trying circumstances.

He needed to take a leave of absence and would have to go nearly two weeks without a paycheck.

“It takes at least 10 days to get funds from railroad retirement insurance, and we were struggling to begin with,” Reddick said. “During that time, we were dealing with a situation and had at least 10 days with no pay. Fortunately, I knew about Friend to Friend.”

Reddick was approached by Russ Lowe, director-regional operations and Friend to Friend ambassador.

“It was less than five days from when I talked to him and when we got our check in the mail,” Reddick said. “The things we were going through, I imagine that if we had a video camera on my face and my wife’s face, it would have said it all. It was like a gift from God. That just made the difference in our lives.”

Reddick and his wife, Jeannine, had two children ages 6 and 11 at the time. The money from Friend to Friend helped them buy food and pay some bills, Reddick said.

Since then, the Reddicks have welcomed twins to their family,

Friend to Friend Wins Big in Vegas

A spontaneous drawing occurred during a recent Las Vegas training meeting with Signal employees, which caused a stir among Friend to Friend Network devotees.

Employees donated toward the drawing by purchasing items such as baseball caps, T-shirts and travel mugs during a two-week span. Most employee donations exceeded the value of the items.

Employees understand the network’s importance, and several have benefited from it. The situation happens the same way every time — just when an employee least expects it, a check shows up in the mail and makes his or her day, or month.

“Employees will give me a call when this happens, and tell me it couldn’t have come at a better time,” said Bobby Caughron, signal safety foreman.

Hurricanes, tornadoes, fires and medical challenges are some of the common reasons behind sudden employee financial need.

“The program’s incredible,” Caughron said. “Every time an employee has an unexpected financial need, a team looks over the reasons and decides if the individual needs the money.”

Many employees use automatic deductions as a way to give to the Friend to Friend Network. Caughron is pleased with the amount of support. By the end of the annual training, employees raised about $2,550.

“I can’t brag enough about the people here,” he said. “Some of them stopped by two to three times to buy more stuff. They understand the need.”

From UPEC Friend to Friend Network Committee President Bob Resch

In 2012, the Friend to Friend Network helped more than 1,000 families across the UP system. None of it would have been possible without generous contributions made by caring employees' direct deposits.

Our success in 2012 echoes the efforts of individuals. Individuals contributed with their paychecks and organized local fundraisers to raise money for fellow employees.

This year, we celebrate nine years of the Friend to Friend Network. It has grown to be a substantial effort upon which many families have benefited in times of need.

The Friend to Friend Network is one of the only nonprofit organizations that can claim a dollar in equals a dollar out. Donations do not pay for administrative costs. Administration is handled by generous, talented and dedicated volunteers.

These volunteers have written by-laws and obtained 501(c)(3) status as a nonprofit organization. They continue to steer Friend to Friend in a positive direction, behind the scenes.

Our annual Friend to Friend Network golf tournament is scheduled for May at the Dodge Riverside Golf Course in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

This tournament has become our most impactful fundraiser, and a fun way to ring in the spring season and catch up with old friends. We hope this year's event will enable us to help at least as many families in 2013 as it has in years past.

Thank you all for your contributions during the past nine years and for continuing to help us grow in 2013.

Sincerely,
Bob Resch

Thank You Friend to Friend!

Dear Richard & Committee:
Thank you so much for the check of $700.00. It has come in very handy with our many trips to Rochester, meals & hotels as well as not working due to my daughter's battle with leukemia. Jennifer was diagnosed with leukemia June 2012; her only hope for cure is stem cell transplant but has battled a liver fungal infection & cannot do transplant until this is gone. Ironically my daughter worked as an RN on same floor (oncology) that she is now a patient at when not in Rochester hospital. She is 28 yrs old. No parent should have to go through this but thank you for your help!

MANY THANKS FOR YOUR THOUGHTFULNESS

Thank you again.

Danny & Sue Hensel

Jillian's Friends

Friend to Friend joined UP Employee Club 86 in December to help a California girl receive needed medical care and new hearing aids.

Jillian Kulinski, 12, daughter of Roseville Locomotive Electrician Bob Kulinski, was diagnosed with brain tumors early in her life.

She has fought through infections and partial paralysis, chemotherapy, hearing loss and re-learning to crawl and walk — twice.

In 2012, the Friend to Friend Network, led by local ambassador Cathy Gregg, helped Jillian and her mother, Julie, fly to Houston to see a specialist about Jillian's brain tumor.

Friend to Friend also joined with UPEC 86 and Bob Kulinski's co-workers at Roseville Locomotive to help Jillian obtain new hearing aids. They submitted Jillian's story to the Sacramento Bee's Book of Dreams, an annual storytelling series that garners assistance for people in need.

New hearing aids were not covered by the family's medical insurance, and Jillian had been wearing the same pair for seven years. In order to hear her teachers in school, she wore a special device that covered her hair, which she did not like.

"She was chosen among many other submissions to have the story placed in the book, requesting assistance," Gregg said. "She received the hearing aids at no charge."

North Little Rock Helps Families in Need

Club 54 members, Human Resources employees, and the crew at North Little Rock, Ark., Jenks Shop and RIP track helped change lives through volunteerism and philanthropy at Union Pacific's 150th anniversary family day in October.

They raised nearly $3,600 in donations for the Friend to Friend Network. Proceeds were collected from a silent auction, train ride tickets, T-shirt sales and a drawing.

"It means a lot that North Little Rock-area employees consistently pledge great support to the network," said Richard Baldwin, treasurer. "This alone enables the network to help many families in need. Not to mention, employees and retirees who attended family days throughout the system last year raised more than $40,000 toward the cause."

one boy and one girl, who were born Oct. 20, 2012.

Danny Brattin, Fort Worth Diesel Shop electrician, thanks Friend to Friend Network and its contributors for assistance provided to his family.

Brattin met with a medical circumstance beyond his control in September 2011; his knee was injured and he ended up being out of work for nearly seven months.

Because Brattin is a retired Marine with 20 years of military service, he did not receive short-term disability. Friend to Friend was able to help him make ends meet during the period he was unable to work.

Brattin had a family to support, including his youngest son still at home; his wife, Fernanda; and his then-3-year-old granddaughter, Kayla.

"It's a wonderful organization," Brattin said. "You never know when some kind of disaster is going to strike. Things can change without a moment's notice."

Brattin has helped the Friend to Friend Network by contributing from his paychecks since he joined the railroad in 2006. Little did he know at the time that Friend to Friend Network would one day help him, too.

"It's nice to know it's there," Brattin said.

A Fort Worth Diesel Shop mechanical service operator received a little help from the Friend to Friend Network this past year.

John Reeves was unable to work for medical reasons. He was able to draw short-term disability, but needed help during the lag before disability payments start. At the time, he supported his wife, Jamie, and a teenage daughter.

"I think Friend to Friend is a good deal," he said. "It helps people when they really need it."

Raffle Raises Money and Morale

Roseville Locomotive Facility employees conducted a tool box raffle and raised $1,420 for Friend to Friend Network. Greg Thompson, first-shift ramp manager, is glad to help fellow employees and enjoys helping organize such events with his co-workers.

“Thanks to everyone who participated in the raffle to raise money for Friend to Friend and help those in need,” he said.

Thompson said the team hopes to have more raffles for the cause in the future.

“We want to do something positive for the employees,” he said. “Just knowing we can do that, and the employees who help feel the same way, it’s great.”

One winner re-donated his tool box prize for a silent bid auction that raised an additional $351.

The Friend to Friend Network is a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization created in July 2004 to help Union Pacific employees, retirees and their families — spouses and children — in times of need.

Throughout the years, the charity has helped hundreds of railroad families who suffered major tragedies including weather disasters, major health problems, fires and evacuations from their family home.

The network is run by active and retired employees of the Union Pacific Railroad. 100 percent of the donations collected go directly to the railroad families in need.

Why Do You Contribute?

Dolores, Calif., Locomotive Shop Total Safety Culture Facilitator Kevin Freeman began donating to the Friend to Friend Network after attending a TSC workshop.

“They talked about an employee in Louisiana who couldn’t make the trip between his family and the shop when Hurricane Katrina hit,” he said.

For Freeman, the decision to donate was an easy one to make.

“It’s railroad employees helping each other,” he said. “The funds I donate are helping somebody I consider a friend. It’s helped people here locally, too.”
